Local Company Receives General Contractor License and Certifications

Atlanta, GA – Design Group and Nimlok West Georgia/Midtown Atlanta has now expanded into general contracting for clients at the mart and outside as well.

Design Group and Nimlok West Georgia/Midtown Atlanta, a LaGrange based company, has recently expanded their services to include General Contracting. The process required having a full time employee to have the education and experience in contracting to successfully complete an extensive test. They are unlimited as to the type and scope of work they may do.

“It only made sense for us to take the next step as we were already doing so much work in the area and having to hire out to other contractors to be the GC. This will allow us to save our clients money by managing their projects from concept, design, to build out and completion,” says Tricia Browning Dimon, President of the company. “We’ve been fortunate enough to have worked with Steve McLean who is our Project Manager in Atlanta for many years. He can manage any job, no matter what the size.”

In addition to becoming a general contractor, the company is also certified to do business as a minority owned supplier to large corporations and to the government as an 8a company.
